He replied that the Officer would be startled if he knew what his 'bumps' really indicated. He then detailed all they stood for, and his description exactly tallied with everything this comrade knew of himself before conversion.

Turning to the phenologist, the Salvationist said, "You know what I was before conversion; you know what I am today. Do you in the face of that still deny that there is a God?" The man confessed that he could not.

LATEST NEWS OF SALVATION FIGHTING ON THE FIELD

HANOVER

Financial Secretary Pays a Visit and Conducts First Enrolment of Soldiers

Lieut.-Colonel Noble has visited his soldiers' Corps, and with Capt. and Mrs. Robertson conducted the week and meetings. On Saturday evening the meeting was held outside and good weather helped the cause. Capt. Noble also witnessed a faithful effort to lead those present into a higher life. The event of the day, however, was the Christmas Eve service for the soldiers. This took place in the evening meeting. Marked attention and interest was witnessed when Mrs. Captain Robertson read the Articles of War and the Colonel publicly read two Commendes under the Blood and Fire Flag. A very impressive service to this service was the singing of "I'll Be a Lord, to Thee." The addresses given by the Colonel and Captain Robertson were of a very helpful and beneficial character.

A very touching sight during the prayer meeting was to see one of our recruits kneeling at the altar pleading with one of his little chums to get saved. Her efforts were rewarded, for the little one knelt at the altar and gave her heart to God.

An impromptu singing party composed of the visiting and Corps Officers rendered good service throughout the week-end. Record collections and tentandees were made during its capacity, the Hall being filled to its week-end at night.

Twelve Seekers at Week-end Meetings

The Saturday night meetings at Lybair Street are being led on by members of the Band and Songsters alternately. On Saturday, November 19th, we had a real good time. Two of the Bandmen were in charge of the meeting. It was certainly a praise meeting, and the comrades testified freely to what God was doing for their souls.

The presence of God's Holy Spirit was felt throughout Sunday, in Junior as well as in the Senior classes. In the knee-draw some fervent, believing prayer was offered up on behalf of the day's fight, and we claimed souls and Corps presence in the morning in Him and His world abide in us as we should ask what we would (as teaching His Kingdom) and it would be done. In the Holiness meeting Adjutant Coy spoke on "Five reasons why I believe in Holiness" and gave us proof from God's Word that Holiness was essential. At the close of the meeting to the mercy-seat for Sanctification. In the afternoon the praises meeting was a time of rich blessing. The Juniors were brought to the front all day. The Young People occupied the platform in the afternoon. We had songs and recitations and each Company Guard read a verse of the Company lesson. THE WAR CRY

Men's Social Notes

By COLONEL OTWAY

It is very apparent that the great hope of all those who frequent our meetings is to be saved, a new heart, or to use the good old Army words "getting saved." Toronto Industrial is also in the "Salvation flowing tide," and last Sunday seven men were with the mercy seat seeking Salvation. The next day a prayer meeting is arranged for the Social Staff and arranged at Augusta Avenue Men's Home. There is here a good Hall, well furnished with organs and piano and seating accommodation for about one hundred men. Commandant and Mrs. McRae conduct the night prayer meeting on Monday evening, also on certain week nights.

Commandant White is now appointed as the Superintendent of the Toronto Industrial Departments and is doing well. There are now about thirty men in the Corps connected with the various departments, with four stores, a distributing centre and workshops and paper sorting and mailing.

Sergeant Warner, of the Toronto Industrial, has been promoted to the rank of Ensign. He has given special responsibility for caring for the spiritual condition of the men. Mrs. Warner will also visit among the men.

The Training Principal, Lt.-Colonel Bettridge, has arranged for the Cadets now in Section to give practical insight into the Social Work and each week two or three will be at the meeting at the Toronto Metropole on Dundas St. The Men's Home at Augusta Ave., Langstaff Hill Farm and Mimico Prison.

Assisted by Mrs. Otway and Commandant White, Adjutant Harley and Adjutant Cooper will conduct the Prison meeting at Longview and the Women's Jail, Concord. During the meeting sixteen lifted their hands for prayer, and then took me as I sang. There are about two hundred men confined at Langstaff Hill Farm and Mimico Prison.

NORTH BAY

Captain and Mrs. Larman

Visit of Colonel Jacobs—Two Seekers

The North Bay Comrades, with their Officers have been praying that there be no break in the souls coming to the mercy-seat. We have heard that we praise God for souls being saved on the last four successive Sunday nights. Colonel Jacobs, assisted by Brigadier and Mrs. McRae, was with us recently. The Holiness meeting was a feast for our souls as the Colonel revealed to us in very vivid manner the two definite works of grace. In the afternoon Brigadier McRae, accompanied by Captain and Mrs. Larman, was a very helpful service at the jail. At night the Hall was crowded and two seekers came forward. On Monday (Thanksgiving) the Corps Band headed the O. W. V. A. parade to the cemetery, where an impressive service was held. The service was conducted and poppies placed on the graves. The Home League has recently been re-organized by Mrs. Brigadier McRae and his wife to become a strong body of the Corps.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Great Call Campaign.
 Week after week the Great Call Campaign goes on, with varying signs of success so far as immediate results are concerned, but always with solid encouragement for the future. In every department of service associated with this great spiritual effort, we find individuals of God's abounding readiness to honor any attempt to do Him service in the saving and healing of our fellow-men. The opportunities for such service are boundless, and universal in their application. The blessing, too, is mutual; in awakening others our selves are awakened, and no one can put forth any effort to bless others without experiencing a share in the blessings dispensed by a gracious Father's hand.

Let us see to it that in grateful recognition of the Spirit's co-operation with our humble efforts we are the more ready to reconvert ourselves to the service of God and to manifest that consecration by every possible means.

CANADA EAST'S OUTGOING LEADERS

CONDUCT ROUSING MEETINGS AT WINNIPEG AND VANCOUVER AND ARE GIVEN A HEARTY SEND-OFF

Regarding the meetings at Winnipeg in which Commissioner and Mrs. Richards took part, our Western contemporary says: "It was evident that Commissioner Radie found a good deal of pleasure in introducing to the audience his old friends and colleagues, Commissioner and Mrs. Richards, and Winnipeg Salvationists were equally eager to show their welcome."

"In the morning service Commissioner Richards was the chief speaker. His characteristic address on the dangers of compromise was timely for these days, when 'clear-cut-lim' seems to be so unpopular."

At night the Commissioner delivered an impressive salvation address and twenty-six seekers knelt at the Cross. On Monday morning the Cadets were addressed by Commissioner and Mrs. Richards and at night the No. 1 Citadel was crowded.

Rousing Time at Vancouver
 (By Wire)

Commissioner and Mrs. Richards were royally welcomed to Vancouver. Their last meeting in Canada was a rousing time. A big march led the united Bands of Vancouver I and III and New Westminster, two big open-air and a crowded Citadel were features of the campaign. Staff-Captain and Mrs. Richards spoke feelingly of their departure and optimistically of their future in the Antipodes. Mrs. Commissioner Richards addressed motherly words of advice and counsel to Christians and the unconvinced. Commissioner Richards gave a fiery address closing his Canadian administration with characteristic fervor in an appeal for righteousness. The party was given a hearty send-off on the steamer Niagara.

Armistice Day

Observed in Toronto by Impressive Two-minute Silence and a Memorial Service for Those Who Fell in the War

THE CHIEF SECRETARY AND HEADQUARTERS STAFF JOIN IN HONORING MEMORY OF HEROES

THE third anniversary of the day when guns ceased firing on the battlefields of Europe was marked in Toronto by an impressive two minutes' silence, followed by an open-air Memorial Service for the gallant dead.

Gorgeous Mass of Flowers

A cenotaph had been erected in front of the City Hall and throughout the morning relatives of those who had fallen reverently laid wreaths upon it, till it became one gorgeous mass of flowers and foliage. Mothers with tearful eyes came through the crowds, which respectfully made room, to lay a trophy of homage at the foot of the altar in memory of the boy who did not return. Little boys and little girls came forward bearing flowers dedicated to the loved father, who, although he will never return, will have his memory kept as green as the bright foliage which shrouded the base of the column. Amongst the widows who brought wreaths in memory of husbands fallen on the field were Cadet Mrs. Thorne and Cadet Mrs. Bennett, both of the Training College. Many Church school hands with and spoke sympathetically to these Comrades, and inspected the medals awarded them.

The Toronto "Globe" records the following little incident: "While immense wreaths were being piled up, wonderful in hue and color, brought by societies and clubs for the members who had fallen, while expensive floral tributes from wealthy families were fastened on the side of the cenotaph, a woman and a little girl passed through the crowds. They were of humble station in life, and the mother had gathered her thread-worn coat around her neck; the little one, no older than six, looked with wondering eyes. At the mother's direction she placed at the foot of the altar, among the gorgeous mass of flowers perhaps the greatest tribute of undying love which was brought there yesterday—a small bouquet of hardy wild flowers, freshly picked, with a small piece of paper attached, with which was scrawled, 'To My Daddy'."

At the Memorial Service, our which Mayor Church presided, the Salvation Army was represented by Colonel and Mrs. McMillan and the Headquarters Staff and Cadets. The Cadets' Band helped to provide the music and four Army flags formed a conspicuous part of color against the grey background of the City Hall.

Eyes became moist as thousands of voices joined in the singing of the great old hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." His Honor, Colonel Harry Cockshutt, Lieut.-Governor of the territory, was one of the speakers.

Proud and Loving Memory

"We must not forget that we have many with us who hoped to win the war," he said. "Let us also remember the dead in proud and loving memory. The many thousands which pad the City Hall Square manifested the utmost reverence throughout the service and around which they carried in their minds to distant fields of sacrifice and service are such as to bring to the heart with under courage and cheer in days of difficulty and depression."

The two public engagements held on Sunday afternoon and night in the Palace Theatre were stirring meetings.

Great Farewell of Missionary Officers

The General Conducts Impressive Gatherings at Hull—Heart-Moving Pageant of Consecration—One Hundred and Twenty Seekers

A MORE thrilling week-end than General never conducted, nor did a Salvation Army pageant more appeal upon the imagination, eloquently to eye and heart alike, than that provided by the magnificent gathering associated with the farewell of the Missionary Party, says the British "War Cry." The fine old city of Hull has been a most unusual scene for the past several days, but its hospitable people, civic authorities and Press are united in showing honor and respect for a Movement whose long-established work in its midst is its own best monument, as well as for its leaders.

Four Impressive Gatherings
 From Saturday evening till late Sunday night the General was indeed a most conspicuous figure, his purpose and anxiety being, as always, to turn this and every occasion into a medium of Salvation and blessing. To relieve the pressure of the throngs of the hundreds of people who were invited to the Icehouse (the Citadel of the No. II Corps), where the General Office conducted a successful attack. For two days and nights, over two thousand were present.

Stifful Use of Forces
 Throughout the week-end the General made the most skillful use of his forces. The Salvationists have never listened to more beautiful testimony and appeals. Entirely devoted to self-consecration with scarcely a word of heart-rending parting, gone, they told of God's call and the indescribable joy of obedience to His will. Veterans and those with youthful enthusiasm entering for the first time the wide open door of need indeed. The crowds, and Yorkshire crowds at that, filled the compact building to overflowing. It was started by the hymn, "My soul has longed for thee," and the hymn, "O God, with the deep and lofty galleries, area, and entrancing all being packed—these intensely eager spectators gained upon entrancing scenes probably of this kind, and doubtless the week-end audience themselves adopted his statement.

Soul-Moving Experiences
 It is impossible ever to touch upon these soul-moving experiences. Here we have the use of the glorified Calvary and Snower returning gladly to the scene of his father's devoted labors; there a young man, also the son of an officer, who had been trained for medical work and who definitely laid himself on the altar for India in the General's Meeting in Westminster Central Hall. Here one of those concentrated Scandinavian women saying in her ecstasy of sorrow, "My soul has longed for thee, O God, with the deep and lofty galleries, area, and entrancing all being packed—these intensely eager spectators gained upon entrancing scenes probably of this kind, and doubtless the week-end audience themselves adopted his statement."

On the other hand determining factors in the campaign have been the personal words of the General, Commissioner Blowers, when the General Office conducted a successful attack. For two days and nights, over two thousand were present. Throughout the week-end the General made the most skillful use of his forces. The Salvationists have never listened to more beautiful testimony and appeals. Entirely devoted to self-consecration with scarcely a word of heart-rending parting, gone, they told of God's call and the indescribable joy of obedience to His will. Veterans and those with youthful enthusiasm entering for the first time the wide open door of need and opportunity in dark hands, were alike in the touching self-dedication; and we venture to say their ringing words, "My soul has longed for thee," will be forgotten by many.

"I have fallen in love with them all," declared the General, and doubtless the week-end audience themselves adopted his statement.

It is impossible ever to touch upon these soul-moving experiences. Here we have the use of the glorified Calvary and Snower returning gladly to the scene of his father's devoted labors; there a young man, also the son of an officer, who had been trained for medical work and who definitely laid himself on the altar for India in the General's Meeting in Westminster Central Hall. prayer the General said, "This is the last night they will spend in the Old Land before setting out on their great life journey. We dedicate them again to Thy service, O God, with the deep and lofty galleries, area, and entrancing all being packed—these intensely eager spectators gained upon entrancing scenes probably of this kind, and doubtless the week-end audience themselves adopted his statement."

One drawback, a very serious one, was encountered in the Palace. There was no getting about amongst the crowded seats to help converted ones to a decision. This seriously handicapped those whose duty it was to plead with and advise individuals in the congregation, and but for this it is scarcely too much to say that the numbers at the mercy-seat would have been doubled. As it was, a desperate and prolonged Prayer Meeting was the order at night, when, as in the day, the General was present. It was a young man elbowing his way right from the back on to the stage, where he declared was the first to deal with him. The second was an old lady eighty-seven who came seeking help from the Salvation Army.

For Service Anywhere
 In the week-end grand total of 120 were several seekers of surpassing interest. Many young men, both of both at the penitential-form and in the Candidates' room, offered for Army service. One of these was a man who a few days before had jumped a Salvationist and was sent to jail. To him it was said, "You have jumped into the Fountain! A young man who has been sent to jail for a crime is now being sent to the Fountain to be baptized in God's Will. The status of one of the Missionary Officers was restored after twelve years of backsliding. That made a delightful scene."

MISSIONARY PARTY SETS SAIL

The Chief of the Staff Leads Final Demonstrations of Remarkable Fer- vor and Goodwill

The banqueting chamber, wherein warriors like Haig and Beatty had secured the city's freedom, was quickly filled with as many representative citizens as could find accommodation. The representatives of the various branches of the Cross were probably as cordial and sincere as that accorded the worthies who had undergone the last hours of their lives. The Lord Mayor was accompanied by the Lady Mayoress, and supported by Sheriff and Mrs. J. Locking, the Under-Sheriff, Mr. H. Pann and Mrs. Pann, Mr. J. H. Groot (Anglican Consul), and various military men.

The happy glow of the Missionary comrades appeared to be reflected in the whole gathering, and the Lord Mayor admirably voiced the city's regard and esteem for the Army and its work.

The event which had called them together, he proceeded, was unique in the history of the city in the history of the Salvation Army, and he ventured to say, in the history of any city. (Applause.) With feeling, on behalf of himself and his fellow citizens, he wished our friends God-speed, and God-speed to them of the interest and sympathy with which their self-sacrificing work would be followed.

heret. Work of affectionate counsel and prayer, the chief of the staff, all the Lord was there! "Go and live the life of sacrifice and love among the people! Now, the Chief's farewell injunction.

Another long, long march, headed again by mounted police—city and dock in turn—was participated in by some twelve hundred Salvationists and friends. It gave full yet nothing chance of demonstrating its good will, it was indeed a happy gathering. With bearing face the Chief had the honor of leading these devoted men and women to the Alexandra Dock, where they were greeted by an ardent multitude, and of accompanying them aboard the Calypso.

Happy Intercom
 The fast-fleeing minutes were spent in happy intercom, and an impression of the clean and comfortable accommodation (D.V.) which was created at Bombay about twenty-five days from the time of sailing.

From the dock issued almost ceaseless salutations and a constant stream of Salvation melody from the Bands. When, at 8 p.m., the Calypso cast off her moorings and moved to the other side of the dock, another wave of cheering and waving, "Good with you," and so played this precious freight out into the harbor. At the yard-arm flew The Army Flag, and above that still the glorious banner of God's protecting and unchanging love.

SALVATION SOLDIER'S ARMOURY

YOU: A PERSONAL TALK

By COLONEL G. L. BRENLE

"One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you. Take good heed therefore: for ye love the Lord your God."—Joshua 23: 10, 11.

DO NOT underestimate the power of God in YOU or what YOU in working quietly and steadily with Him may accomplish. Paul tells us not to think too much of ourselves (Rom. 8), but be sold of himself, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4: 13). He said strength of Christ and thereby thought of himself linked to the Holy Spirit. He said strength of Christ and thereby thought of any work Christ set him to do.

Big with Opportunities
The future before YOU is big with opportunities and possibilities. Open doors on every hand invite YOU to enter and do service for the Master and for your fellowmen and the strength that works in Paul, writes in you. You do not hinder it by selfishness and unbelief.

The future success of the Army depends upon its religion, its relation to God in Christ, and no one can tell, my dear reader, how far that army, your battalions, they will spill ruin and death.

"Who knows! Lot could argue, but that I may, by kindness and a good example, win over some of the God-ones to righteousness, and thus save a whole city from destruction." But it is all failed, and only made them despise him at last. "Stand back," they said, when he would restrain their wickedness, "are you a judge?" Indeed, so far from listening to his remonstrances, they would have killed him, had it not been for the angels who pulled him into the house, for he seemed to them as one that mocked.—"Bible Battle-Axes," by The General.

MAKE HASTE!

Make haste, for lo! the alpey son is saying that are very long, its doorway eyes of waking light. Will close the day and bring the night; And from the western, crimson sky, Will call its good-bye, good-bye—the day is gone.

Make haste, for all abide the gate The weary pilgrims, tired, late, Are waiting for a hand to guide Them to the haven just ahead. Where robes of white and helish fees And all that now their way oppose Dare not come in.

Make haste, for borne on every breeze That murmurs through the falling leaves, In heard the sound of clanking chains, Where still the Prison of Darkness Reigns.

If pity lingers in thy breast, Make haste and do thy very best To set them free.

Make haste into the streets and lanes, To mountain heights, to distant plains, Where strays a vast misguided race, With curse and blight on every face. The mark of Cain is on their brow, And they will strive to save them now, Ere all are lost!

It will be great, "exceeding abundant" above all YOU ask or think. The crowning joy is yet to come. The final and all sufficient and unending reward will be given by the Master's own hand. First not, if YOU fail of some lesser rewards, lost through your fretting YOU fall of the honor which cometh from God only, and miss the crown Christ keeps in store for YOU. O how, beware of fretting over rewards and promotions, and honors which man can give. It is a sure set YOU by the enemy of your soul. It surely is.

Take your eyes off other people and see Jesus and Him. If others are good and spiritual and devoted to the Lord, emulate them, follow them as they follow Christ; but if they are faulty, frost not thy soul because of them (1 Cor. 15: 33). But pray for them, and remember the word of Jesus to Peter: "What is that to thee? Follow thou ME."

Jesous for God's Glory
Be guided by the spirit of Jesoush and his armor bearer. They went up alone and routed the Philistines. They were jealous for the glory of God and the overthrow of His impudent and insolent foes and were willing to jeopardize their lives to defeat them.

Be filled with the spirit of Paul, who wrote: "What things were gale to me, these I counted loss for Christ; I count not my life dear unto myself; and I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved."

Beek the Lord Daily
Would YOU like to be that m in or woman? Then seek the Lord, as K Him daily, constantly with your whole heart. Beek Him every day. Beek Him in secret prayer in the night watches and in the noon day. Beek Him in glad obedience, seek Him in childlike faith. Beek nothing for yourself. "Beeketh thou great things for thyself?" Beek them not. "It is the word of the Lord to YOU, IF YOU want Him to work in YOU mightily. If honor comes, thank God, and say it at the torn feet of Jesus, and forget it. Let it be said, "Let it be said, "puffed up." If honor comes not, in them seem to forget YOU in the distributions of rewards and honors and promotions, still thank God and go on. "Still seek the best which comes from God only, the honor of walking in the footsteps of Jesus, of loving, of serving, of sacrificing, of suffering for others, and YOU shall have your reward. YOU surely shall, and

Orders and Regulations

For Soldiers of The Salvation Army

28—He Should Show His Colors.

A bold avowed, not only that he is a servant of God, but a Soldier of The Salvation Army, will be favorable to him in every way.

This will command respect. People will feel that he is really. They may hate him, but they will admire his pluck and courage.

He will do this most effectively by wearing uniform. Anyway, he must let it be known in the work, in the shop, behind the counter, in the factory, in the mine, on the ship, in the family, or wherever his lot may be cast, that he is on the side of Jesus Christ, and that he belongs to The Salvation Army.

29—No Unlawful Business.

By any unlawful business, it meant such as the following: The disposing of intoxicating drinks, or living out of the sale of them. The printing or disposing of false, licentious books, or books that are not for the use of the soul; or the manufacture or distribution of anything that is calculated to damage the interests of mankind.

In selecting for their children a mode of earning a livelihood, parents must be careful not to put their children on the street, or to call them to their hands which, when they grow up, they will discover to be opposed to the glory of God and the well being of man, and, therefore, has to be abandoned in order that they may save their souls and follow Jesus Christ.

THE THING ETERNAL

There is one thing eternal on this earth, and one thing only; and that is the thing that endures unto dust and is forgotten. The personal appearance of historical figures is either unknown or forgotten, but their characters remain. David for heroism, Columbus for wisdom, Isalah for eloquence, Julius Caesar for imperial strength and enterprise, Napoleon for military genius, and so on. Long after the dust has returned to dust, and that spirit has returned to God who gave it, human character remains. Character is destiny. What are you are the all important. First, have the character of a true man. Don't presume to be a saint. If by being a saint man that it prevents you from being an overy-balanced, and properly-adjusted man. The individual who wraps himself in a sanctified exterior, not fulfilling the true purpose of his creation. God's intention being by combine sainthood and manhood in developing the threefold nature of man in his body, mind and spirit. Great evil is done to the cause of religion by extremists who overlook this fundamental truth.

UNEMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS

"The world's work has been brought to a standstill." Is the finding of Professor Carl of Sweden, who speaks of the unemployment figures throughout the world as "alariming," and declares it remarkable that "the two countries whose economies are most suffering the most severely, the United States and Great Britain."

An ironic contrast is presented in the unemployment conditions in "defeated Germany," according to Berlin press correspondents, who inform us that the unemployment wave which is sweeping the world has "left Germany in the best condition of any of the great industrial nations except France." A boom in industry stimulated by the low value of the mark in other countries, absorbed the idle men and women until, late in September, the unemployed numbered only 383,000. This number is said to be decreasing steadily, and shows "a progressive decline in unemployment in Germany in the past twelve months."

In France American correspondents report that while that country is the "greatest sufferer of all the Allies in the world," the stands, as far as unemployment is concerned, in the best position of any of the Allied and associated nations. Against the millions out of work in Great Britain and the United States, and 600,000 in Italy and 100,000 in Switzerland, strikes one the fact, in France, "careful research on unemployment in France shows it is not a problem here."

A NEW REPUBLIC

A new state, about 100,000 square miles in area, with a population of 4,600,000, came into being on October 10th, when the governments of Honduras, Guatemala, and Salvador were united under the Provisional Provisional Council of the Central American Federation, and the hope is variously expressed in the press of the United States that the new republic "may fulfil the purpose and ambitions of its creators, and bring among its own inhabitants unswayed by attempts of aggression from abroad." Dr. Julio Rucchi, Minister of Guatemala to the United States, issues a signed statement in which he says that the constitution adopted by Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador now is in effect and the work of administering the affairs of these three states as of one republic is being carried on by a provisional government.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

To soften old paint or varnish and make its removal easy use two parts spirits of ammonia to one of turpentine.

To clean plaster of paris ornaments over them with a thick coating of starch and allow it to become perfectly dry. Then it may be brushed off and the dirt with it.

Harmful and Beneficial Insects

An Interesting Nature Study Which Will Help Us to Distinguish Our Friends from Our Foes.

AMONG the various kinds of Nature Study which have been attempted in schools, there are few that are so interesting and useful as that which combines with an understanding of the various forms of life that surround us constantly as the study of insect life, says a plants or other animals, and that Nature has provided them with all sorts of ways and means of spending the long, cold winters in Canada without being killed by the cold. They find that all insects do not grow up to maturity in the same way, and that before each insect can be con-writer in the "Farmers' Advocate." It is a subject about which it is easy to arouse the interest of the pupil, because there is no child, grown to school age, who has not come into contact, in the lower form of life, with some of the boys or girls of them.

Discreet and Encouragement
The study of harmful and beneficial insects is particularly deserving of encouragement, because not only do the depredations of harmful insects fall of wonders, but the close relation between the study of science and the art of farming can be pointed out in the most way with better effect than in almost any other way. It is a simple matter to find time for the teacher to point out the intimate connection which exists between even the lowest forms of life and the pupils themselves. It really struggle for existence between the two, whether the child lives in town or country. All depend for sustenance upon the crops and live stock of the farm, and when it is pointed out that millions of dollars' worth of human food is destroyed annually because of the activities of these small insects, even the youngest child will grasp at least some of the significance of the injuries done.

How important it is that the study of harmful insects should bring out the importance of controlling these pests, if the farmer is to have good crops and the poor people of the town and city to have cheaper food. It should be pointed out that the most of our well-educated men are even now giving their whole lives to the study of these small animals with a view to finding out the harmful ones and perfecting methods for their control. These men find that some insects attack only certain kinds of trilled, the farmer must understand something about its life-history. These life-histories are themselves full of interest. Who does not remember with what surprise he or she learned that the ugly worm on the cabbage leaves, which he thought to be a beautiful moth, or that the green worms on the cabbage plants that seem to be so voracious and hungry all the time, finally develop into the pretty white butterflies that flutter so abundantly about the gardens in the summer. These butterflies are harmless in themselves and feed on the nectar of flowers, but they lay their eggs on the underside of the cabbage leaves, and the worms, or larvae, hatch out from them. When the larvae become full grown it makes a little cocoon, and after some time emerges as the cabbage butterfly.

Injurious Flies
The house fly, which is so common as to often be annoying, is especially injurious, because it carries disease. The female fly lays its eggs among the filth and dirt on which it usually feeds, and the little maggots hatch out after a few hours. After about five days each changes to a pupa, which is shown as a roundish object in the accompanying illustration, and from this the adult fly emerges after another five days. The body of the fly is covered with hairs, and these hairs collect much dirt and filth as the fly moves about, so that if it afterwards visits the milk or other food lying on the table or in the kitchen. Another kind of life-history is that of the grasshopper. The female grasshopper lays her eggs in a hole which she burrows in the ground, and each female lays from 20 to 40 eggs

MAKE ITS OWN FUEL

"Within the next ten or fifteen years every automobile will produce its own fuel by a still carried on the car and used to extract the oil from the motor, said Thomas A. Edison, Jr., son of the famous inventor, in a discussion at Edison Park.

"For years I have been working on a substitute for oil, a mixture of kerosene and alcohol, and I believe that will have the combustible qualities of gasoline," he said. "I believe that mixture will come day be found. We shall be able to solve the problem by manufacturing stills for individual cars to distill a combustible mixture from crude petroleum and other chemicals while the car is in motion just as a housewife distills her own petrol.

Mr. Edison said that it is the ambition of his life to put his oil distillation device, and added that a car of average power so equipped will be able to produce not only sufficient fuel to run itself, but enough valuable by-products to pay for the maintenance of the car. He declared that the invention when completed and marketable will probably meet with strong opposition on account of the revolutionary character of the invention, and it will come, he declared.

EFFECTS OF FRIGHT

Medical reports contain many instances in which the hair of a person subjected to shock or extraordinary fright has been seen to fall out. The hair of James T. Spadden of Spring Garden is turning red, as the result of a harrowing five minutes with a vicious bull. Prior to the occurrence Spadden's hair was coal black. The hair was seen to fall out after the bull was too late for him to reach safety. The animal lowered its head and charged. Spadden side-stepped the beast, whose anger was intensified. A moment later he was back at him this time knocking its victim down. The bull tried to gore the prostrate man, but Spadden managed to escape its lungs. He was rolled about on the ground, however, and severely bruised.

Spadden's strength was almost exhausted and death seemed certain when the owner of the bull, armed with a pitchfork, ran to his aid and drove the beast away. About forty-eight hours later a few red hairs were found scattered among the mass of black ones that covered Spadden's head. The number of these has increased until now the two tints are about evenly divided.

NEW STAMP ISSUE

New stamps have been issued in Palestine bearing the word "Engelien" in Arabic at the top, in English at the top, and in Hebrew at the bottom. These three languages are official in Palestine at the opening of the year of Palestine and the Holy Land. The Nile Mission Press has extended its missionary work to the Holy Land, and has issued stamps in Arabic, English, and Hebrew. These collectors will go forth in a special effort to reach the Jews, some of whom, by a person, and printed witnesses to the Gospel.
